WELCOME FROM PIAA DISTRICT III CHAIR MIKE CRAIG

Welcome to the 2024 District 3 Wrestling Championships. We are excited to add Girls Wrestling to this year's championships, and look forward to watching this sport grow over the next several years. I encourage you to read the articles by legendary writer Rod Frisco in this program about District 3's role in the emergence of girls wrestling.

I am very happy to serve as PIAA District Chairman for the 2023-2024 school year. I would like to thank all our schools in District 3 and their coaches and administrators for all of their hard work throughout the year to provide the opportunities for our student-athletes to compete.

It is a great honor to work for the benefit of our schools' student-athletes. We have an outstanding group of people serving on the District 3 Committee and other outstanding people working throughout the District's ten-county jurisdiction serving as game managers and staff at our championship events.

As evidenced by the difficulties of the last several years, we should not take for granted the benefits of competition, sportsmanship, and enjoyment these athletic events offer to all of us. We look forward to having another great year in PIAA District 3.

The Committee appreciates the support it receives from our sponsors, and we are very pleased to be partnering with The Peyton Walker Foundation to increase heart health and Sudden Cardiac Arrest Awareness and with River Rock Academy as a supporting sponsor.

Lastly, we would like to thank all our PIAA Game Officials. We could not have our events without the dedication of our PIAA Officials. If you have an interest in becoming an official, we encourage you to go to the PIAA website at www.piaa.org.

Thank you for supporting our student-athletes in District 3 and enjoy the championships!

DISTRICT III TAKES LEAD ROLE IN GIRLS WRESTLING

By Rod Frisco

On Feb. 16 of this year, history made a stop in PIAA District III.

Again.

Just as a District III school – J.P. McCaskey of Lancaster – hosted the first non-sanctioned Pennsylvania girls wrestling championship and was the first to formally sponsor a girls wrestling team under PIAA sanction, two more District III schools became the first to host PIAA girls wrestling championship events.

The District III Girls Wrestling Section tournaments on Feb. 16 at Susquenita and Mechanicsburg high schools officially lit the flame on PIAA-sanctioned girls wrestling postseason events, cementing the district's status as the state leader in girls wrestling.

There are many people to thank for the reality of girls' wrestling in District III, but one person in particular: J.P. McCaskey athletic director Jon Mitchell.

It was Mitchell who convinced the School District of Lancaster and McCaskey officials to host a state championship for girls in – get this – 1999. That's a quarter of a century ago.

And as girls wrestling began its slow (and now rapid) growth, Mitchell made sure that his school district would be the first to formally sponsor girls wrestling on March 17, 2020. That ignited the 4-year, COVID-interrupted run to the PIAA's threshold of 100 sponsoring schools to enact a state championship.

"I really didn't have to work that hard to convince our board of the value of girls' wrestling," said Mitchell, a Harrisonburg, Va., native who coached the McCaskey boys wrestling team that often included girls. "It was always supportive of the idea. All I had to do was share facts with them."

And look what Mitchell and McCaskey have started: 47 official District III girls programs (14 more than second place District VII), the only district with enough schools to have sectional qualifiers to districts, which will be conducted on Mar. 2 at Penn Manor HS at the PIAA South Central Region Tournament, just like the District III 3A boys championship.

Jon Mitchell

Pat Tocci

"I'm tremendously excited about (the PIAA postseason) this year," said Mitchell, who serves as District III's girls wrestling chairman. "I'm looking forward to the whole process, seeing the girls wrestle for state championships at Giant Center."

It all started with the godfather Mitchell along with current Penn Manor AD Pat Tocci, a Lehigh Valley native turned Lititz resident who previously worked for the National Wrestling Coaches Association and has played a key role in developing girls wrestling in PA. It was appropriate, then, that McCaskey was one of the two team champions in the section tournaments; Cumberland Valley was the other.

"District III has gone above and beyond to become the state's leader in girls wrestling," said Brooke Zumas, the director of SanctionPA, the organization that guided state schools toward PIAA team sponsorship. "What's unique in District III is the people focused on the people who were in position of influence to make it happen and maintained their efforts."

FROM HER STORY TO HISTORY

By Rod Frisco

All of the young ladies participating in the first PIAA-sanctioned Girls Wrestling Championships have a long list of people to thank making it happen.

Right near the top is Brooke Zumas.

As much as anyone – and there were many – who shepherded girls wrestling from novelty to increasing participation to this year's full-fledged championships, Ms. Zumas parlayed love of wrestling, patience and work ethic into a unique role.

Ms. Zumas helped to form and chaired SanctionPA, an organization dedicated to encouraging schools to establish girls' wrestling programs at PIAA member schools, enough to surpass the 100-school threshold required by PIAA to sanction the sport and begin a state championship.

The first to approve girls wrestling was J.P. McCaskey on March 17, 2020. No. 100 was Pennridge HS in Montgomery County on Feb. 14, 2023, triggering the PIAA By-Laws to sanction the sport.

"We launched SanctionPA in early 2020 with the mindset that we needed to provide education and support for schools that were considering girls wrestling," said Zumas, a Lehigh Valley native who as a young girl followed her dad to Lehigh University matches and fell in love with the sport.

"Prior to that point, most of the conversation concerning PIAA was to get the organization to change the By-Laws," said Zumas, who was an assistant coach at Parkland HS near Allentown. "But Pat Tocci [current Penn Manor AD and a major supporter of girls wrestling] and others felt the best path was to follow the PIAA's process. We knew it was going to take work, but our mindset was to go get it done."

That's exactly what SanctionPA did despite several barriers, not the last of which were the COVID-19 shutdowns that came weeks after the organization's launch and the schools' numerous questions.

"I was actually surprised with how quickly it happened, given the circumstances," said PIAA Chief Operating Officer Mark Byers. "Once it got some momentum, there was a domino effect."

"We have an Emerging Sports policy that requires 25 sponsoring schools to qualify for consideration and 100 to sponsor a championship," said PIAA Executive Director Dr. Robert Lombardi. "We wanted to have a systematic process that was solid and thorough. It had to be integrated with the same importance as all sports."

For its trouble, PIAA endured withering criticism from back benchers who wanted PIAA to bypass its own By-Laws and simply declare a championship as other state organizations had done.

That's where Ms. Zumas' organization played its critical role. Her group constantly provided Zoom meetings and seminars designed to provide answers to curious athletic directors and administrators.

And it paid off: On March 7-9, the girls will take their place alongside the boys in the PIAA Wrestling Championship at Giant Center in Hershey.

"We're all incredibly excited and grateful to everyone for making this happen," Ms. Zumas said. "It's really an emotional moment. When I saw that official time schedule with the girls rounds at Giant Center, it made it very real."

Rod Frisco, who retired from the District 3 committee in 2022, spent 25 years of his award-winning writing career for the Patriot News primarily covering football and wrestling. A long-time contributor to the wrestling community, he has been inducted into both the District 3 and Pennsylvania Chapter of the National Wrestling Halls of Fame. We are grateful for his interest in helping us celebrate this dawning of a new era in Pennsylvania scholastic sports.
